TEAM 43

This document explains how our team is structured, what our goals are, and the action plan to achieve them.

SPG PROJECT

Leadership and Team Roles

Leadership Selection Process

After team discussions, we agreed to select a leader with a strong strategic and leadership mindset. The choice was made by analyzing each individual's key strengths and interests, and through mutual consent. We ultimately chose Sharmila to represent our team, recognizing her leadership experience and her genuine interest in team building.

Role Plan

We are all team players, so responsibilities are shared collectively, with everyone contributing across different phases of the project. Roles are assigned for each phase of delivery based on the type of assignment, giving us the flexibility to customize responsibilities in line with individual interests. This ensures tasks are aligned with personal strengths while maintaining fairness and balance.

The roles span the entire project cycle:

- Planning and Team Coordination
- Research / Resource Identification
- Documentation of Knowledge
- Compilation and Delivery

By adapting roles dynamically and distributing work equally, we create space for accountability, collaboration, and meaningful participation from every member.

How will we organise leadership for this project?

For this project, we'll follow a single leader structure to ensure smooth decision making, proper coordination, and accountability. The leader will guide the overall direction, assign tasks, manage deadlines, and oversee the final submission while ensuring quality.

At the same time, based on the type of task, we'll form subgroups with their own task leaders so that members get opportunities to lead and learn. Alongside the fixed leader, two peer groups will work closely to support coordination, share responsibility, and strengthen collaboration. This way, we balance clarity under one leader with distributed leadership that encourages growth and teamwork.

How are decisions made?

Decisions will be made through a collaborative decision making process during group meetings to ensure different perspectives are considered. It's important because our project's main theme is focused on cultural understanding. If the team is not able to reach a consensus after a reasonable amount of time, a majority vote will be done to decide upon things. If the majority vote ends with a tie or fails, then the project leader will have the power to make the final call.

What roles would the other members play?

Each member of the team will take on a specific role to ensure accountability and efficiency, while responsibilities will be shared collectively. Roles are not fixed, members may swap or take on multiple roles, but this will be a collective decision based on individual interests, agreed upon together with the team leader. In practice, everyone will contribute across roles depending on requirements, with work distributed equally. Roles include Resource Investigator / Researcher, Documentation specialist, Planner/Co-Ordinator.

This approach balances clarity of responsibilities with flexibility, encouraging collaboration, equal participation, and opportunities for growth.

How will we work together at different stages of the team task?

Initially, we will discuss together, divide the work among ourselves then work separately, finally share the outcome of individual work for peer review, if necessary.

We strive to maintain a collaborative and non-judgmental environment with open communication and mutual respect. This ensures that every contribution is valued, feedback is constructive, and the team grows stronger through collective effort.

05.

What communication mode will we use and when?

We use WhatsApp group for quick updates and short discussions, while Google Meet sessions twice a week allow for detailed conversations and decision-making. For documentation, resources, and record keeping, we use the Notes section in ClickUp. By sticking to these minimal channels, we ensure clarity, efficiency, and hassle-free collaboration.

How will we share the workload? What will we do when a team member is doing more (or less) work than others? What happens if someone is legitimately unable to complete their role in an assignment?

Work loads are calculated and distributed in a uniform fashion. When one member suffers with more load, they can discuss with others and equalize the load. Similar goes for those who have too little to do. If someone is unable to complete their work, a deeper discussion will take place pertaining to challenges that hindered role completion and will work towards solving it while ensuring it don't happen again.

How will we help team members

To support our team members, any resources or knowledge they discover whether through research or by chance will be promptly shared in the WhatsApp group for quick updates. For long-term use, these will also be documented with clear details in the ClickUp Notes section, ensuring proper record keeping and easy reference for everyone.

06. When and where will we hold our meetings?

Generally, at regular intervals twice a week for detailed discussions or to assess progress made so far. Besides that, as and when any member asks for meeting to clarify a doubt. We will use "G-meet" for our meeting.

Team leader will schedule the meeting at convenient time of members; generally, duration will be between 30 minutes to one hour. To start with, leader will explain the purpose of the meeting and members will actively participate.

When and how will we review progress on goals? What is our process for setting and meeting deadlines?

Weekly review sessions on goals and progress are carried out. Final internal deadlines are generally set 3 days prior to official deadlines giving the team ample time to review and make last-minute changes or lead team efforts for uncompleted tasks.

Interpersonal Processes

Team 43

How will we manage conflict if it becomes personal and not task related?

01.

We will rely on an unbiased third-party mediator to find common ground, pledging to accept their decisions gracefully without gloating or resentment. Individuals acting as the third-party must ensure to focus on amiable decisions and prevent artificial power dynamics.

What will we do to make the experience of working together a positive one?

02.

Regularly reaching out and engaging with our teammates, aiding them in their tasks and hosting spaces beyond the domain of the project serves as the key to establish proper flourishing relations with one another.

How will we celebrate successes & commiserate goals we do not meet?

03.

Success will be celebrated in an orderly fashion without disruption of future plans. Missed goals lead us to lean on the philosophy of the Bhagavad Gita: "Fine joy in one's efforts (karma), for one doesn't hold the right to the fruits of one's labour".
